43 The Elon Teacher-Scholar

Elon University is recognized as a national model of engaged learning by industry observers such as U.S. News & World Report and Newsweek. That achievement is built on the cornerstone of the teacher-scholar ideal defined in the final pages of this report and embraced by Elon's deeply dedicated, intellectually engaged faculty, as well as the learning-centered culture that faculty bring to life each day through challenging and innovative academic programs.

Elon faculty embrace the idea that scholarship and teaching are inseparable, that teaching is their principle dedication and that innovative, engaged models of teaching and learning, such as undergraduate research, service-learning and internships, lead to better, deeper learning. As stated in "The Elon Teacher-Scholar" statement, this broader view of faculty engagement with students encourages "productive interactions that blur the boundaries separating traditional teaching activity, scholarship and professional activity."

Right now, more than 70 faculty members are supervising honors theses, more than 20 faculty members are working closely with students selected for research support through the Lumen Prize and more than 100 faculty members have mentored 185 students in research that was presented on campus in Elon's Spring Undergraduate Research Forum. In the spring of 2011, 32 undergraduate students directed by Elon faculty presented their own research at the National Conferences of Undergraduate Research in Ithaca, N.Y., placing Elon in the top 5 percent for the number of students presenting research among the more than 300 universities participating in this conference.

Last year, scores of Elon students presented at regional and national conferences hosted by the discipline-based professional organizations of their majors. More and more, both Elon graduate and undergraduate students are co-authoring scholarly work with Elon faculty.

As the Teacher-Scholar statement explains, "the faculty's ability to model intellectual engagement is based on their intentional and continual development as professionals." Through their ongoing, active scholarly and creative activity, faculty model intellectual engagement and stay on the cutting edge of their fields of expertise. Elon faculty members are committed to advancing the state of knowledge and understanding, and as such they are actively involved in scholarship.

This report, paired with the 2011 President's Report, captures and reflects some of the scholarly and creative activity our faculty engaged in during the 2010-11 academic year. I invite you to celebrate with me the excellent work of the Elon University faculty, teacher-scholars truly committed to excellence.

The Elon Teacher-Scholar

Elon strives to attract gifted and well-educated faculty who are deeply committed to the potential of their disciplines to enhance our understanding of the human condition and the world. As teachers, mentors and scholars, the faculty are dedicated to modeling the intellectual values they seek to impart to students, including a learned, reflective and critical approach to life. In these roles, the faculty take joy in the process of inquiry and sharing their knowledge with others.

As active members of the academy, the faculty participate in professional activities that keep them current and enlarge the intellectual and practical opportunities available to students. Finally, as responsible members of the university community, Elon teacher-scholars also dedicate their talents, experiences and leadership skills to activities that sustain, develop and improve the entire institution.

The Elon faculty embrace the idea that scholarship and teaching are inseparable because scholarship is the foundation of teaching. The scholarly and professional activities of faculty connect them to a vital intellectual community beyond the walls of Elon, ensure their continuing development as enlightened seekers, contribute to the body of knowledge and wisdom, and renew their enthusiasm to engage students. The Elon community is committed to creating an environment that allows the faculty to excel as teachers, scholars and mentors.

Elon University is principally dedicated to teaching undergraduates in and out of the classroom. Faculty strive to instill in their students a commitment to intellectual endeavors and a lifelong devotion to learning and the ideals of citizenship. They share with their students a sense of the history and vitality of scholarly inquiry that emerges from disciplinary depth and expands to interdisciplinary inquiry. All faculty recognize their responsibility to convey a foundation of established knowledge, but their ultimate goal is to cultivate informed critical thinking, creative expression, and a desire to serve the common good.

While classrooms, laboratories, and studios are the traditional focal points of an intellectual community, scholarly inquiry extends beyond these environments. As teacher-scholars, the faculty are committed to improving the content and pedagogy of their teaching. By developing classroom environments in which all persons are respected and informed engagement is valued, faculty challenge students to develop the skills necessary to understand complex issues and topics. Simply stated, the classroom is a place to challenge students to be engaged learners and to establish mentoring relationships that extend interactions beyond the traditional classroom. The challenge to be engaged learners extends not only beyond the classroom but even beyond the confines of the institution.

Elon recognizes, values, nurtures and provides support for innovative approaches that strengthen the linkages between knowledge and experience through programs such as international study, service learning, cooperative learning, leadership training, undergraduate research, internship experience and civic engagement. As a consequence of this broader view of faculty engagement with students, the university encourages productive interactions that blur the boundaries separating traditional teaching activity, scholarship and professional activity.

For example, faculty may experiment with service-learning projects that combine classroom learning with direct applications in the local community, use their professional consulting expertise to develop case studies for the classroom or employ web-based technologies to guide and enhance student internship experiences with employers located across the country.

One of the strongest connections between disciplinary expertise and student experience occurs when faculty mentor students in the process of scholarly inquiry, encouraging and supporting presentations at student research forums and professional disciplinary meetings. Scholar-mentor activities combine traditional teaching, experiential education and professional expertise to mold graduates ready to take their place as working members of their profession or to continue their academic training in graduate or professional school.

The faculty's ability to model intellectual engagement is based on their intentional and continual development as professionals. While they share common goals, each Elon faculty member possesses unique gifts, skills, training, perspectives and approaches that enrich the academic community.

The university recognizes and values the differences between individual faculty members and encourages each to grow and develop as a teacher-scholar. Thus, the Elon faculty reflect the comprehensive nature of the institution and the variety of their disciplines in that they are scholars, mentors, philosophers, theoreticians, researchers, artists, writers, educators and professional practitioners.

At Elon, professional activity is broadly defined as any activity involving the serious practice of disciplinary expertise. Scholarship is essential to an intellectually vibrant and enriching community, and so it represents the most fundamental form of professional activity. Other forms of professional activity include service to the profession, developing new research skills, taking special courses, attending workshops related to one's discipline, attending workshops on teaching pedagogy, and attending conferences, performances or exhibits. As they mature professionally, faculty may serve as consultants and accept leadership roles in disciplinary organizations.

Scholarship is a creative process of inquiry and exploration that adds to the knowledge or appreciation of disciplinary or interdisciplinary understanding. It is the serious exercise of what is being taught in the education of students: clear goal setting, adequate preparation, intense inquiry and critical reflection.

Elon University encourages and recognizes a broad array of scholarly endeavors just as it has adopted a broad view of faculty engagement with students. Scholarship adds significantly to our understanding by: 1) discovering or uncovering new knowledge or insights, 2) generating new theories and techniques that guide discovery, 3) integrating knowledge within or across disciplines, 4) applying knowledge responsibly to solve problems, and 5) developing pedagogical innovations that facilitate the dissemination of knowledge.

Distinct differences exist in the types of scholarly activities that are valued both within and between disciplines as a consequence of the unique historical development of each discipline. However, across all disciplines, recognized scholarly work shares some common features:

- It results in a product, presentation, exhibition or performance that expands knowledge, skills or understanding that can be shared with others.
- It extends beyond the limits of the institution.
- It develops and/or expands the expertise of the faculty member and lifts the faculty member's standing within the institution and in his/her greater community (scholars, artists, researchers, professional practitioners).
- The work is reviewed by those outside the institution who have appropriate expertise.

The tangible results of scholarship include academic publications, presentations at professional meetings, grant proposals, artistic performances, musical scores, screenplays, art exhibits, computer software, patented inventions, professional manuals, video productions and other work determined by each faculty member's academic department. Scholarship is also reflected in pedagogical innovations (such as textbook ancillaries, laboratory manuals and experiential activities) that are shared with the academic world outside of Elon. Works of synthesis that translate knowledge for those lacking expertise or summarize current understanding for those with expertise further represent important scholarly work valued by the institution.

Elon University is a rich intellectual community committed to providing a dynamic and challenging curriculum that emphasizes learning across the disciplines and encourages students to put knowledge into practice. Faculty model a life of learning through their engagement with students and their scholarly accomplishments. As a part of a vibrant academic community, they share with their students the joy of mental, physical and spiritual transformation, guiding them to become informed and caring citizens of the global community.
