

Chicago Style (17th Edition): Notes and Bibliography Style

General Information: Chicago is a citation style that is used most commonly in history, art, and social sciences. There are two main types of Chicago citation styles: notes-bibliography and author-date. Notesbibliography (NB) incorporates footnotes and a bibliography while author-date relies on in-text citations more with a references list instead of a bibliography.

Journal Article:

- Model: First then last name, "Title of Source," Title of Container, vol. #, no. #, (Month Year): Page #, https://doi.org/
- References Example: John Smith, "Buying Organic Fruit," Journal of Apples, vol. 3, no. 5, (October 1997): 10-17, https://doi.org/53.1345/285937.

In-Text Citation Examples: in Word, insert a Footnote, then do 1) first and last name the first time you mention an author, but just last name from the second time on, 2) title of article, 3) journal, 4) year published, 5) page numbers

*If there are 4+ authors, list only the first, then "et al." as a footnote but list all authors in the bibliography in alphabetical order by last name

Book:

Model: First then last name, Book Title (City published: Publisher, Year published), Page #. References Example: Sue Peterson, The Blue Sky (New York: Penguin Random House, 2018), 295-307. In-Text Citation Example: in Word, insert a Footnote, then do 1) first and last name the first time you mention an author, but just last name from the second time on, 2) name of book, 3) city, 4) publisher, 5) year published, 6) page numbers

Webpage:

Model: "Website article," Company, Date of last modified/accessed, website link. References Example: "All About Dogs," Petco, accessed April 20, 2008, https://www.petco.com/allaboutdogs/

In-Text Citation Example: in Word, insert a Footnote, then do 1) first and last name the first time u mention an author, but just last name from the second time on, 2) title of article, 3) title of website, 4) year published, 5) website \rightarrow abbreviated version is author's last name and the title of website page *If there's no date published, use date accessed

Chicago Style (17th Edition): Author-Date Style

General Information: Chicago is a citation style that is used most commonly in history, art, and social sciences. There are two main types of Chicago citation styles: notes-bibliography and authordate. Notes-bibliography (NB) incorporates footnotes and a bibliography while author-date relies on in-text citations with a references list.

Journal Article:

Model: Last name, First name. Year. "Title of Article." Journal, vol. #, no. # (Month), Page #. https://doi.org/

References Example: Shelton, Blake. 2007. "Famous Country Music." Journal of Guitars, vol. 8, no. 4 (June), 4-63. https://doi.org/53.1346/683091.

In-Text Citation Examples: (Last name Year, Page #) \rightarrow (Shelton 2007, 26)

Book:

Model: Last name, First name. Year. Book Title. City published: Publisher. References Example: Brady, Tom. 1993. Eternal Career. New York: Simon & Schuster. In-Text Citation Example: (Last name Year, Page #) →(Brady 1993, 12)

Webpage:

Model: Last name, First name. Year. "Article." Last modified/accessed Month Year. Website. References Example: White, Betty. 2002. "The Sweetest Soul." Accessed May 12, 2013. https://www.google.com/bettywhite/.

In-Text Citation Example: (Last name Year) \rightarrow (White 2002)